1. The 359 Trudovak Battalion completed work on the Dobrich airfield in September 1950. The field was to be used exclusively by the Soviet Air Force.
2. The runway at the field was 3,000 meters long and 250 meters wide. It was made of concrete and was 30 centimeters thick. There was a forest located to the south of the runway; fuel and ammunition supply depots were located in the forest.
3. Barracks, scheduled for completion at the end of 1951, were under construction near the field.
